A stylized, flat-design illustration of the Mexico City skyline. The scene is composed of several key landmarks: on the left, the long, yellow National Palace with its characteristic crenellated roofline; in the center, the large, orange-domed National Museum of Anthropology; to the right, the red, ornate towers of the Chapultepec Castle; and on the far right, the tall, green Angel of Independence monument. The buildings are set against a plain white background. In the foreground, a solid green horizontal band represents the ground, with small, dark green silhouettes of trees and bushes scattered along the base of the buildings. The overall style is clean and modern, using a limited color palette of yellow, orange, red, green, and white.
